MERTON TELLS OF COMMISSION PAID FOR STOCK DEALS

German Industrialist Describes His Visit To America

NOT SURE OF LEGAL CLAIM

Government Strikes Hard at Miller and Daugherty

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—When Richard Merton, German industrialist, first arrived in America in April 1921 in an attempt to recover the assets of the American company, he knew his legal claim was weak. He testified to this today at the trial of former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, charged with conspiracy to defraud the government.

His legal claim was not strong, he felt because the transfer of the stock, a few days before America entered the world war, was oral. In answer to a question by United States Attorney Buckner, concerning the late John T. King, former republican national committeeman from Connecticut, he said he did not come here with the idea of finding a "clever politician." Mr. King also was indicted but died shortly afterward.

Merton said that he pictured America as a nation much different from England, France or others of the allies.

"I did not think America exactly friendly," he said, "but I certainly knew they would be more decent than the others."

Although he felt his case to be weak, Merton said he also felt that America had no desire to seize private property or to impound it without just and sufficient cause.

Under redirect examination, United States Attorney Emory Buckner questioned Merton about his authorization as agent for the Societe Suisse, for which Merton collected nearly $7,000,000 for American Metals company shares which had been seized by the government under trading with the enemy act.

Daugherty and Miller, the government charges, shared bribes of $441,000, which Merton said he paid as "commission" to procure a speedy response.

Merton said he paid the $441,000 to King. The present trial is based on a superceding indictment naming only Daugherty and Miller.

Wreck Planned Is Official Verdict

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 14.—(AP)—The wreck of the Missouri Pacific special New Orleans train which cost the life of George Busby, Little Rock, engineer and severely injured H. J. Munda, Little Rock fireman, was deliberately executed, officials announced today after an investigation at the scene near McGehee, Ark.

Rail fastenings had been removed and spikes pulled, causing one of the rails to turn under the engine, railroad officials said. The spike puller and wrench were found by the road bed.

Bloodhounds in charge of officers were sent to the scene this morning. No clue was available as to the identity of the alleged wreckers.

Shipments Show Decided Decrease

MONTGOMERY, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Montgomery cotton receipts and shipments for the past week showed a marked decrease as compared with the number of shipments and receipts for the corresponding week of last year.

The total yearly receipts to date are 6,130 bales while the total yearly receipts to September 10, 1925, were 29,709 bales.

SOLONS SAID TO TAKE OFFICE DAY AFTER ELECTION

Legislative Sessions Could Continue But Short Time

ATTORNEYS POINT TO ACT

Regarded as Unlikely Extra Session Will Be Summoned

Speculation in the possibility of an extra session of the Alabama Legislature was renewed here today when a report gained circulation that many attorneys hold to the belief that should the Legislature be called into session, the meeting could continue no longer than the day following the general election.

It had been generally supposed here that should the Legislature be summoned into extraordinary session that the present membership of the law-making body would continue in official, until January, when the legislators elected in November are scheduled to meet.

Reports reaching here from Montgomery are to the effect that such is not the case. The code is said to provide that legislators and state senators shall assume their offices on the day following their election, unless otherwise provided in the constitution.

In view of the possibility that this question might come up for decision this year, local attorneys today were looking into the legal ramifications.

In the meantime, it was regarded here as extremely unlikely that the Legislature would be called into session because of this provision of the code.

Another view of the legislative question was taken here today by those who asserted the belief the governor could call either the old or new Legislature into extra session. The old legislators will hold office until their successors are elected and qualified, it was pointed out. Those who held to this belief added that the successors could not become qualified until they have taken the oath of office.

Serious Charge Aired In Court

S. W. Welch, charged with incest, was on trial in the circuit court this morning, the hearing having been started Monday afternoon and carried over into the Tuesday morning session. The state was represented by Solicitor D. C. Almon and County Solicitor T. C. Almon, while J. N. Powell was counsel for the defense.

Not Much Cotton Being Shipped

Not much cotton is being shipped yet, it was stated today by Milton Andrews, Louisville and Nashville freight agent here. A good deal of cotton was moved in August last year, but none this, he stated, adding that by this time last season hundreds of bales had been shipped here.

Two Counties Are Showing Interest

Lawrence and Limestone counties are showing unusual interest in the North Alabama fair which opens here on next Monday, according to Hugh Ballew, local man who is responsible for the fair being held here this year. Mr. Ballew stated this morning that both counties will have excellent exhibits and bid fair to take the ribbons and prizes from Morgan agriculturists unless rapid steps are made by home folks. Lawrence and Limestone will both have exceptional agricultural and poultry exhibits.

KLAN OBJECTIVES OUTLINED BY IMPERIAL WIZARD EVANS

World Court Opposed By Organization Which Pledges Support To Prohibition.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP) The first objective of the Ku Klux Klan should be to save America from "alienism" Dr. Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard of the Klan, said today in an address at the national meeting of the order, outlining his platform for the next four years.

The second objective, he said, should be to restore protestantism "to full and unquestioned supremacy in the spiritual thought and life of America and to make spiritual freedom the undoubted possession of every citizen of our beloved country."

"Our third object," he continued, "is to assist America toward the fulfillment of her God-given destiny by protecting the fundamental policies of Americanism that has made us the most respected nation in the world, as well as the happiest and most prosperous people ever known."

Amplifying this program, the imperial wizard declared American entry into the World Court would be a backward step and "a great mistake." He also laid down these policies:

"Compulsory education in the public schools, with close co-operation between the nations, state and local governments.

"Registration of aliens and deportation of all criminal aliens, as a means of curtailing crime.

"Sincere efforts and heart-felt support of prohibition."

GUARDS ON DUTY AT WAGNER TRIAL

Change of Venue For Desperado Asked Of The Court

LEAKESVILLE, Miss., Sept. 14.—(AP)—With armed guards patrolling the grounds about the Green county courthouse, the trial of Kennie Wagner, charged with the murder of Murdock McIntosh, in December, 1924, opened here this morning.

A plea of not guilty to the murder was filed.

A motion for a change of venue was made by attorneys for Wagner, who contended that he could not receive a fair and impartial trial in Green county. The motion was contested by the state. The court took the motion under advisement.

Indications were that a plea of self defense would be offered.

Wagner appeared cool and collected, spoke clearly and displayed no emotion. The crime with which Wagner is charged was committed on Christmas eve when the officer attempted to arrest him near McLain, after a jail break.

Crowds Gather At Courthouse

Large crowds gathered at the courthouse today in anticipation of the opening of the second trial of A. L. (Shorty) Davis, charged with the slaying of Jeff Howell, of Hartselle. The courtroom was packed during the morning hours as other cases engaged the attention of the court.

NINE STATES VOTE TODAY TO SOLVE NATIONAL ISSUES

Prohibition Comes To The Fore In Battle Of The Ballot

WORLD COURT IS ALSO IN CENTER

Colorado To Decide Local Issue In Nomination

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Prohibition and American adhesion to the World Court figured prominently again today among issues before voters of nine states who went to the polls to choose party standard-bearers for state and federal offices.

The campaign of Washington Cook, member of the governor's council in Massachusetts against Senator William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican national committee, for the party senatorial nomination, has featured advocacy of modification of the Volstead act. Former Senator David I. Walsh has no opposition for the Democratic nomination.

In Louisiana Senator Brunsard, Democrat, was opposed for renomination by Jared Y. Sanders, former governor and a "dry."

Prohibition likewise featured the Maryland Republican primary where Senator Weller was opposed by Representative John Philip Hill who is prominent among wet forces in the house. Representative Millard Tydings has no opposition for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Senator Wesley K. Jones, a "dry" is opposed in Washington by six candidates for the Republican nomination. The subject of prohibition has been prominent during the campaign.

In Colorado, Senator Rice W. Means, reputed to have the support of the Ku Klux Klan, is opposed for the Republican nomination by the forces of Clarence C. Hamlin, national committeeman who heads the anti-klan wing. National issues played no part in the campaign which was one of personalities.

In South Carolina a run-off primary found Senator Ellison D. Smith contesting for the Democratic nomination with Colonel Edgar A. Brown, speaker of the state house of representatives. Neither received a majority in the original primary. Colonel Brown has attacked Senator Smith's vote in

This refers, perhaps, to Mr. Rockefeller, and he doesn't know how much he is worth. It all depends on what there is in the ground. One thing is certain, he would not sell out for one billion.

FORD also is a billionaire. He has the income on at least four billions. There is no knowing what he is worth; it depends on what there is in his head, and that of his son Edsel. George F. Baker is a billionaire probably, also Mr. Mellon.

CONGREGATION OF CENTRAL BAPTIST TO SELECT PLANS

Decision Expected To Be Rendered On Sunday

2 PROPOSALS MADE KNOWN

Work On Church To Be Started Soon, It Is Stated

The congregation of the Central Baptist church is expected to render decision Sunday on two proposed building programs offered to the congregation by the members of the building committee last week.

Two proposals now are under discussion. One of the plans would provide for the razing of the present structure and the construction of the complete Sunday school building and the skeleton of the main auditorium. The other plan would provide for leaving the present auditorium as it is for the time being and construction of the complete Sunday school building.

Following the decision of the congregation on the two proposals, the building committee expects to begin construction as soon as the necessary preliminary arrangements can be perfected and the contracts let.

Substantial contributions already have been made to the building fund, but the total was not large enough to complete the entire structure at the present time, it was explained and it became necessary for the congregation to voice its decision as between the two plans.

The completed church structure will be one of the handsomest in this section of the state.

Case Carried Over From Monday Is Heard

INTEREST HIGH IN HEARINGS

Second Trial Here Of Famous Case Brings People

Trial of A. L. (Shorty) Davis, Hartselle youth charged with having slain Jeff Howell, also of Hartselle, will not likely get underway until late this afternoon in circuit court.

Immediately after convening of the afternoon session, witnesses in the case were excused until three o'clock, at which time it will be determined whether or not the second trial of the Hartselle man will begin today or be carried over until tomorrow.

In anticipation of the second hearing in a case which has attracted attention throughout this section, a large crowd jammed its way into the circuit courtroom this morning and was back again after the noon adjournment. The corridors outside of the courtroom also were crowded with witnesses and persons interested in the outcome of the trial.

Davis was tried sometime ago, a sentence of 40 years being given him, but he was granted a new trial by the higher court.

The shooting to death of Howell on Second avenue, near the heart of the Albany district, on a Sunday evening, shocked the entire community. Both Howell and Davis were well known in the Hartselle section, where both resided.

Davis has been held in custody since the slaying.

When court resumed its deliberations at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, Attorney John Sample, counsel for the defense, addressed the court asking that a showing be permitted for an absent witness.

Soon after a conference, witnesses were excused in the case until three o'clock.

The morning session of the court was taken up with the hearing of a case carried over from Monday. No indication was given as to how much time will be required to complete the hearing of the Davis case. It was rumored at the courthouse there was a possibility of additional witnesses, not heard at the first trial, being introduced at the present hearing.

BROADSIDE FIRED AT FURNITURE MEN

Commission Seeking Elimination Of "Veneering"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—A broadside was touched off today by the federal trade commission in its war against the methods of some manufacturers in advertising and selling veneered furniture. Twenty-seven firms in Grand Rapids, Mich., many of them doing a nation-wide business, were accused of unfairness in complaint docketed by the commission.

The action was part of a drive by the commission to secure a trade practice agreement among furniture makers and retailers to protect the public against what is regarded here as improper advertising tactics.

The complaints charge that the companies have advertised furniture as oak, maple or walnut without advising the prospective purchaser that the articles were only veneered on exposed surfaces.

The reply of the furniture companies has not yet been docketed.

Death of Woman Is Investigated

BIRMINGHAM, Sept. 14.—(AP) A chemical autopsy on the body of Mrs. Edna Lowe of 922 S 26th street today has shown nothing that would aid police and detectives to solve the mystery of her sudden death, caused by poison liquor, according to her husband. Her husband, Bill Lowe, 40, who was taken to St. Vincent's hospital where his wife died, suffering from a touch of poison that caused his wife's death is improved, attendants stated. Tests for various poisons are being made at the city laboratories in the examination of contents of Mrs. Lowe's stomach. Lowe is being held pending the coroner's investigation, which will be held after the investigation. Mrs. Lowe died Sunday after an illness of less than an hour. Police suspect a plot, but no evidence to substantiate such has yet been disclosed.

MANY EVENTS IN BACHELOR TRIAL

Interesting Things Occur During The Proceedure

WETUMPKA, Ala., Sept. 14.—(AP)—The most sensational murder case in the history of Elmore county and probably in this section of the South was closed here Saturday when Clyde Reese Bachelor, son-in-law of Judge Lamar C. Smith, and Hays Leonard, a negro tenant on Bachelor's plantation, were sentenced to death by the gallows on October 22, for the murder of Judge Lamar C. Smith, former probate judge of Elmore county, on the night of August 30.

Attorneys for both Bachelor and Leonard entered a notice to the court that they would appeal. The appeal will probably be heard by the Court of Appeals at Montgomery sometime in April 1927.

Bachelor, the youthful ex-soldier, entered a plea of not guilty by reason of insanity when he was brought to trial on Tuesday morning. His mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Bachelor, both testified that he was insane. One or two relatives of the Bachelors testified that Clyde Reese Bachelor was mentally unbalanced. Hays Leonard, the stuttering half-wit negro, confessed to the assassination of Judge Lamar C. Smith, and entered a plea of guilty, which was later changed by his counsel to "not guilty." Leonard swore that he was forced to fire a load of buckshot upon Judge Smith by Bachelor, whom he said was near him with a pistol in his hand when he fired the fatal shot. Leonard was the first witness to take the stand and remained there from 9 in the morning until 3:15 in the afternoon.

Bachelor was not called to testify in either his case or that of Leonard's. Mrs. Elizabeth Bachelor, wife of Clyde Reese Bachelor, took the stand, but when told that she was not required to testify unless she desired to do so, she asked Judge Geo. F. Smoot to excuse her. She immediately left the courtroom. During the few minutes that she was in court she never spoke to her husband or looked at him.

Mrs. Lamar C. Smith, wife of Judge Lamar C. Smith, his son, George B. Smith, went upon the witness stand to testify in both the Bachelor and Leonard case.

The state asked for the maximum penalty in both cases. Bachelor's counsel pleaded with the jury to give Bachelor lifetime in the state prison.

Eight of the members of the jury that served in Bachelor's case were farmers while two were merchants, one an insurance man and the other a banker.

The court room was packed and jammed from the beginning of the two cases on Tuesday morning until their close Saturday morning. Despite the large crowds, perfect order prevailed and no disturbances were countenanced. Heavily armed deputies guarded the single entrance to the courtroom. Here and there throughout the building were officers well prepared to handle any emergency that might arise.

Both Bachelor and Leonard were handcuffed each time they were brought into the courtroom and when they were led out, though the manacles were removed when they were seated.

Leonard broke down and sobbed for several minutes while he was relating how he crawled up to the home of Judge Smith's and fired the fatal shot. Bachelor showed no feeling, he remained calm and collected throughout the trial.

A few minutes before the trial began on Tuesday morning Bachelor's aged grandfather, W. H. Macon, shook hands with his grand son and tears came to his eyes as he said, "God bless you my son, May the Lord be with you, I hope that you will be a changed man." Bachelor sat next to his father and mother during the trial near his counsel. He was not consulted during the hearing of the entire case. During the recess periods the audience would arise and crane their necks to get a peep at the youthful slayer.

When Leonard identified the shotgun that he used to kill Judge Smith Mrs. Lamar Smith broke down and sobbed for several minutes.

After Judge Smoot sentenced Bachelor and Leonard they were carried to the Montgomery county jail where it is understood they will remain pending their appeal.

WETUMPKA, Ala., Sept. 14.—(AP)—One of the many noticeable incidents of the Bachelor trial here was the fact that women composed the largest number of persons in the courtroom during the trial. Many brought cushions and lunches with them early in the mornings and remained throughout the day in their seats for fear of losing them.

Mothers with babies and fathers with their sons sat attentively and watched the progress of the case.

A small number of colored persons attended the trial. The largest number of the colored audience were witnesses in the case.

Every available seat in the small Elmore courtroom was filled. The aisles were packed and many were forced to stand because they were unable to find seats.

The aisles were cleared each time a newspaper or press representative came in and out of the small room. Only members of the families of Bachelor and Judge Lamar C. Smith and newspaper and press representatives and lawyers were admitted inside of the railing.

INDIGESTION

North Carolina Lady Says She Had An Awful Time With Indigestion, Till She Took Black-Draught.

Pilot Mountain, N. C.—"For several years I suffered with a bad case of chronic indigestion," says Mrs. Sam C. Inman, of this place. "I had bad spells with my stomach. At times I had severe pains in my right side. My stomach would get upset and I would have an awful time. It seemed like everything I ate disagreed with me. I was in pretty bad shape."

"My husband had been using Theford's Black-Draught for some time for indigestion. He had spells of it too, so he suggested that I try Black-Draught. I took some from his box, just to see if it would help me, and I found it was the very thing for my trouble. It did me a great deal of good. My condition was brought on by a chronic case of constipation and, by getting relief from this, I found my general health was much better."

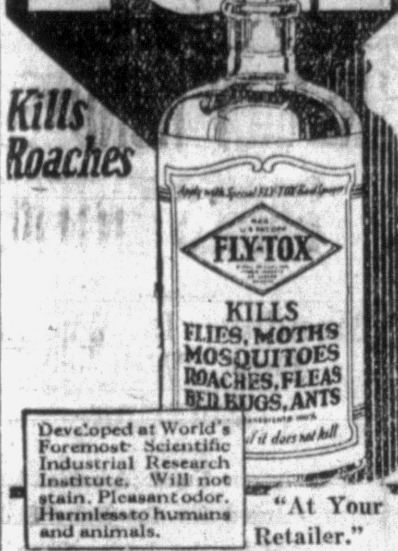

"We keep Black-Draught in the house all the time. Whenever I find I need it, I take several doses and thus avert a bad spell of indigestion. It is a splendid medicine and I am glad to say so."

Moulton News

MOULTON, Ala., Sept. 14.—(Special)—Moulton is sending her quota of college students to the several state and out of the state institutions within the week. Maier and Lyndon Almon, Russell Hightower and Willie Stockton to Auburn, all as freshmen; Misses Louise Griffin and Josephine Griffin to Alabama College, at Montevallo, where the former has been in the past as a student and the latter goes for the first time; Misses Lee and Francis Foreman are returning as seniors to the University of Alabama and Wallace Alexander as medical student to Vanderbilt. Among other students nearby who are leaving are Robert and Frank Coburn of Courtland for the state University and Hayes Williams of Mount Hope for Maryville College, Maryville, Tenn.

The Hatton school, in the west part of Lawrence county, opened its doors for the 1926-27 session Monday with a full attendance and with two new members in the faculty of six teachers. The new members of the faculty are W. M. Wimberly, of Butler, Ala., and Miss Gladys Buttram of near Moulton. Miss Buttram will not enter upon her duties in the grades for a few weeks. Mr. Wimberly has charge of a portion of the junior high work and the physical training. Principal Olen D. Roberson has had charge of the Hatton school for several years and during the time has had associated with him Miss Bettie Lou Windham, of Moulton, as primary teacher. The other two members of the faculty are Misses Ellie McBride of Hillsboro and Mildred Alexander of near Moulton.

Messrs. O. L. Judy, cashier of the Bank of Moulton, and "Doc" Richardson, an experienced automobile man, are opening a sales room for Chevrolet cars and parts in the large store rooms long occupied by the firm of Stevenson and Alexander on the east side of the public square.

A considerable amount of newly ginned cotton is being sold on the streets of Moulton as it is being ginned. Though apparently a good crop over Lawrence will be gathered yet many sections of the county report that the staple is lighter than at first expected—too much weed and rain a month ago came for the expected large yield. The county, however, is producing one of the largest corn crops in its history.

The schools at Courtland and Hillsboro opened Monday for eight months sessions or possibly nine months. Each has practically a faculty that has been at the school for one or more years. At Courtland are Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Beauty Unadorned In South Sea Puts Broadway Shapes To Shame

BY SONIA LEE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK.—On Broadway beauty sets its own price.

On the island of Bali it may be worth an extra measure of rice. Pulchritude, which would silence forever the blonde so forcefully speaking of her preference right now, passes along on this island in the South Seas, unadorned and unsung.

Unadorned—because a skirt is thought ample covering by its satin-sheened, amber colored ladies.

Unsung—because no Broadway producer has as yet had the good sense to be shipwrecked on its

The tax assessor of Lawrence county has completed the assessments which show valuations to the amount of $5,828,548.00, a slight increase over the last year. Of this amount the personal property is assessed at $1,346,563.00. The valuations give a total state taxes of $67,028.30. The four mill tax for schools will be slightly increased over that of the past year.

shores.

Miss Lola Kreuzberg, of Berlin, single handed explorer and expeditionary force into Bali looks upon the festive revues on the bright street in the world, and wonders why some enterprising person doesn't pick a chorus down India way.

"There is no beauty in the world," she maintains, "to compare with that of the ladies of Bali. While the men may not be worth a trip into the wilds—the women are. They are slim, tall, a delicate golden-brown. Their physique is a delight."

But it seems that their gentlemen aren't connoisseurs of feminine charm. True, an extra handsome lady may or may not fetch a bit more attention—but very, very little, comparatively speaking.

"But the women of Bali," explains Miss Kreuzberg, who came to New York to tell of her lone adventure and of the motion pictures she took of the religious and secret dances of these people, "the women are utilitarian as well as decorative. They do all the work while the men promote cockfights. The women till the soil, keep house, bear children. And the men eat what's produced, sleep in the house and play."

"The girls there know they must work. If not for their husbands,

Old State Capitol To Have New Heat

(AP)—The historic old state capitol of Alabama is to have a new heating system at a cost of $13,000. It is expected that the system will be installed this fall ready for use during the winter months.

The present system it is said has been in use since 1880. The new system is known as the Price heating system.

A sprinkler system is to be installed also within the immediate future and is to cost around $25,000.

New office furniture is to be placed in the state treasury department at a cost of $2,200.

We have crowded so much clothing value into $33.50 that we will lose money unless we sell a world of suits at this price. That is a straight-from-the-shoulder statement.

We have enlisted the vast resources of two foremost clothing manufacturers. We have invested heavily in a plentiful stock to afford wide selection. We have shaved our profit to bring the price of finer weaves and tailoring down to $33.50. We are staking the season's earnings on the conviction that today's need in merchandising is to seek profit through volume. From The Daily of September 14, 1914.

The directors of the City National Bank have opened the "Buy a Bale" movement here by agreeing each to buy a bale of cotton at 10 cents a pound.

President J. M. Shelborne, of Howard College, spoke at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon.

Robert Burr left this morning for Marion Institute, which he will attend this year.

John F. Weaver of the Tennessee Valley Broom Works, left today for a business trip to Southern railway points.

C. K. Lide, Jr., left this morning on a business trip through the South after having been the guest of relatives here.

There are plenty of ways to make money, but few have learned how to keep it.

While on your way to Athens don't forget to stop at the ferry.

The old oaken bucket recalls the good old days for some folks, but not for the plumber.

The season for fish stories is about out, lots of folks can soon go to church with a clear conscience.

Some trials make one wonder whether or not defendants are not trying to prove juries insane.

Evidently the people of Elmore county regard life as something to be prized and murder as a real crime.

The anarchists who seek Mussolini's life should take a correspondence course to correct their inability to aim with any degree of accuracy.

Two more Saturdays and then the opening of the world's series will vie with the thud of the pigskin in public interest.

Don't you just know that the following editorial from the Nashville Tennessean was written by a man: "Matrimony: A process by which 'his' becomes 'ours'."

"Shoot to kill" is the order of the postoffice department in its latest drive against bandits. A few more extreme penalty decisions by juries and much of the wholesale robbing and slaying by bandits will be stopped.

ATHENS CITIZENS MAY BUILD HANDSOME NEW COUNTRY CLUB.

The Daily's Athens correspondent reports a movement on foot in the Limestone capital for the early construction of a handsome country club. That movement is in keeping with the progressiveness always displayed by the Twin-Cities sister city across the river.

Athens has never been known to lag behind the procession. At the present time Athens is one of the few North Alabama communities without a country club and The Daily trusts that the time will not be far distant when its Athens friends and visitors may be chasing Colonel Bogey across the links of Athens' own golf course.

The correspondent points out that before the war Athens had a country club which was beginning to serve well the needs of that community. Like many other institutions, the club was a war fatality, however, and did not survive the war's demands for manpower, money-power and interest.

The Daily congratulates Athens on its plans for the new club and, having had the pleasure of being represented at the opening of the club here and in Huntsville, hopes that it will not be overlooked when the invitations are extended to the opening of the Athens institution, inasmuch as The Daily knows that what Athens undertakes to do is never excelled.

COLONEL GRAVES OPPOSES CALL FOR EXTRA SESSION OF SOLONS.

In a letter to the Anniston Chamber of Commerce, replying to a letter from the civic organization, Colonel Bibb Graves, democratic nominee for governor, opposes a call for an extra session of the Legislature. Colonel Graves says he does not believe that the voters of Alabama would approve a good roads bond issue at this time, if John Rogers is chairman of the highway commission. He is entitled to that opinion, notwithstanding he will find many persons in disagreement with him.

The Anniston Star points out that this issue could easily be removed from the campaign. The Star says:

"Time is a factor to be reckoned with in the completion of Alabama's road system. It would be practicable, therefore, for the Brandon Legislature to hold a special session and make provision for an election to be held after the Graves administration shall have come into power. In that event, Colonel Graves could name his new highway commission and vote would therefore register the confidence of the people in his administration, instead of the Brandon-Rogers regime."

In addition to the need for road legislation, the Star finds additional reasons for believing an extra session to be desirable at this time. These reasons, the Star sums up as follows:

"The time equation is also to be considered with reference to Alabama's schools and the port of Mobile. Public schools and the higher institutions of learning all over the state are now opening for fall terms with an aggravation of the inadequacy of accommodations that they had to cope with last year. There are neither enough teachers or schools to meet the demand, and on account of the insufficiency of funds with which to operate the schools the best of teachers cannot be secured. They are going to other states where more money for education is available."

The conclusions of the Star will find response in the minds of many citizens of this state. Colonel Graves may be able to work out plans for roads and schools which will meet the requirements of the age, without the special session. That, however, is extremely doubtful. If he cares to express his plans, no doubt the press of Alabama would be more than glad to give general circulation to his views. He cannot convince the people no extra session is necessary by merely stating that fact.

The Daily readily understands that there are many reasons why Colonel Graves would like to avoid an extra session. Like anyone else, he would like to go into office with a clear slate and nothing to hamper him. That is what every incoming governor would like to do. At the same time, Colonel Graves must realize that these days are exceptional ones and time is a vital factor in the future development of the state.

Colonel Graves, The Daily believes, would be the last to sacrifice any part of the state's welfare on the altar of political fortune. The Daily believes that Colonel Graves, in opposing an extra session, is not looking at the matter from a selfish viewpoint. Rather, The Daily believes, he is not convinced that an extra session would be worth the expense it would incur.

For that reason the arguments advanced by the Star are particularly timely. The Daily again reiterates, that if Colonel Graves can show how the schools and the highways will be taken care of without an extra session, he will be deserving of the deepest appreciation of the people if he avoids having an extra session. Legislative sessions are always a bother. So far, however, Colonel Graves has not stated how he will continue to accelerate the school and roads program, without an early meeting of the law-makers.

REFASHIONING FORDS OBJECT OF CONCERN TO WORCHESTER TELEGRAM.

Possibility that a Ford may be a Ford in the popular conception of the term no longer is of deep concern to the Worcester Telegram, which admits the distressing importance of the Detroit's product in the economic life of the country.

"The rumor that Mr. Ford is to put two more cylinders into his car and endow it with electric gear shift is of considerably more significance than the routine industrial note or announcement of change in automotive design," the Telegram states.

Recounting the important places occupied by the well-known light cars, the Telegram continues:

Mr. Ford's cars have become pretty nearly essentials—at any rate appendages—of American existence. They have the importance of trolley cars, of shoes, of plumbing. And Mr. Ford is himself important. Any man is important who owns so much money, pays so many people's incomes and indulges so extensively in ideas.

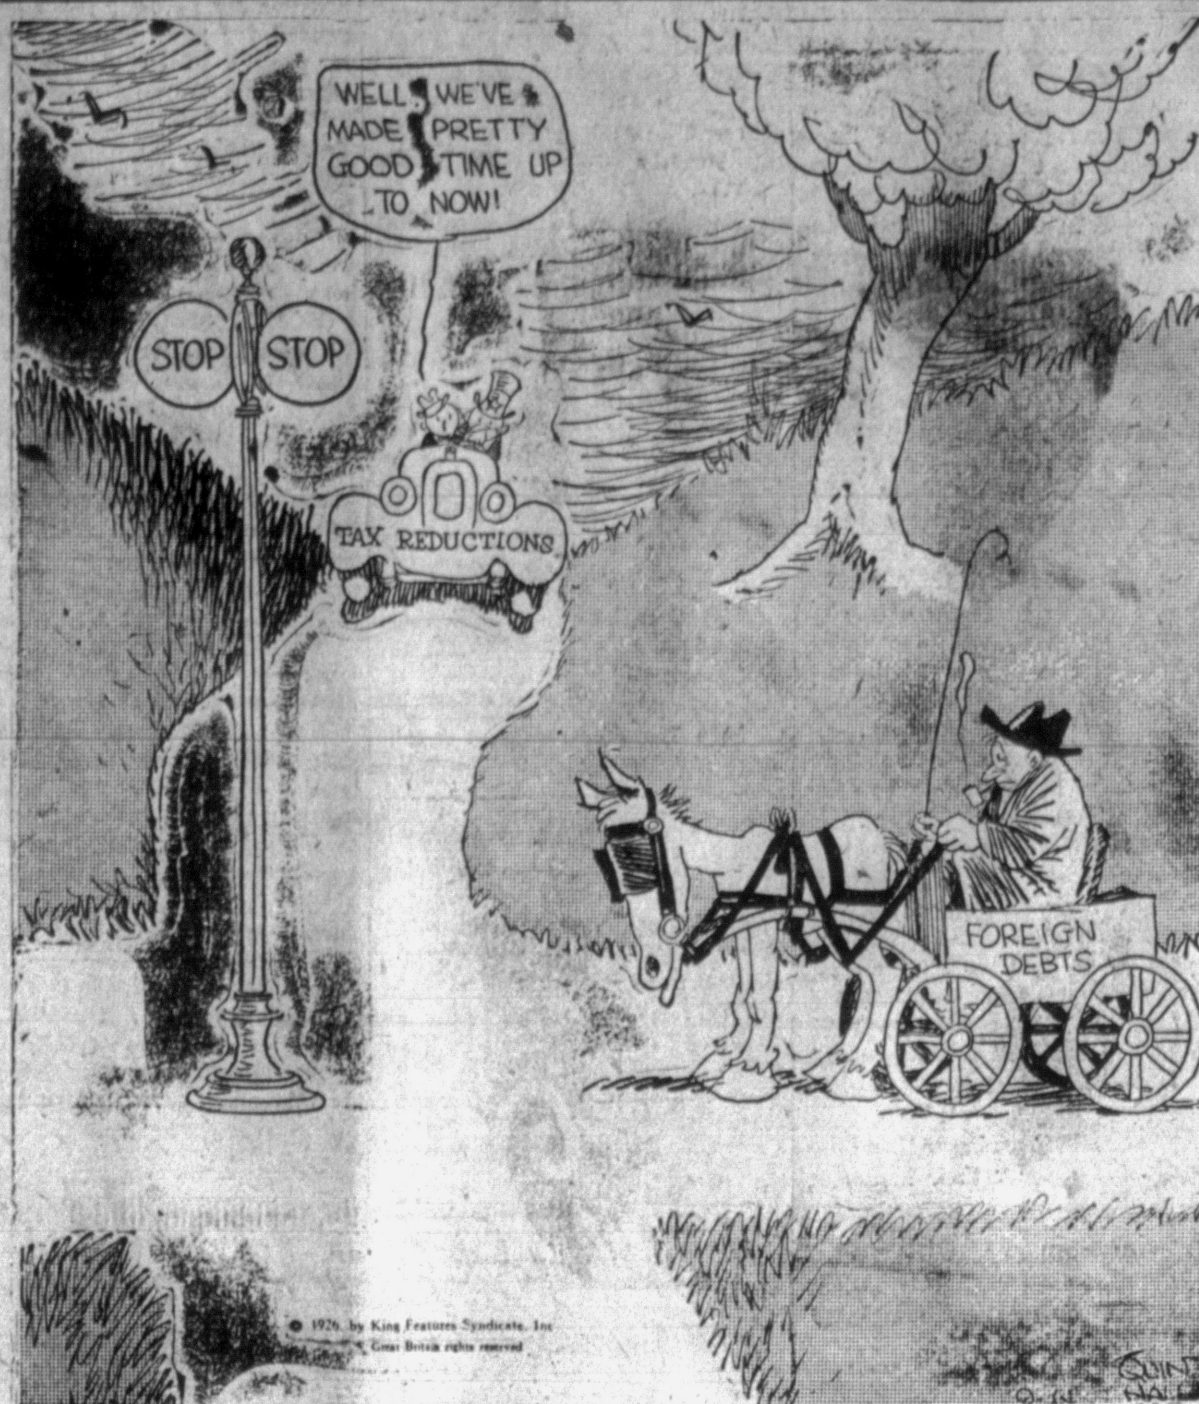

"Always a good car, Mr. Ford's car long would have been better for a line of beauty, but only recently would he consent to such an addition. Important figures in his organization have for some time insisted that it would be better—and that its sales would be better—for the additional cylinders and the gear shift. Having accumulated a startling number of millions of dollars by doing in the automotive world a particular thing in a particular way, but in a most superior manner. Mr. Ford has been loath to permit innovation.

If the extra cylinders and the gear shift appear perhaps we shall have to take them as evidence that the automobile public has outgrown the old standard Ford car. Perhaps we shall have to take them as hint that the public is outgrowing Mr. Ford. That would be distinctly sensational. Mr. Ford has been leaping and bounding ahead of the train of progress—with not infrequent digressions hither and thither—for a long time. If it be demonstrated that anybody knows more about making or selling automobiles than he does, then it is proof that the day of the perpetually enduring superman has not arrived; proof truth remains in the adage that if you have been doing anything in one way for ten years there is a better way to do it.

The conclusion drawn by the Telegram from the reports of possible changes in the Ford car may not be far wrong. It is a bit early yet to judge the results of what appears at present to be a bitter struggle between Mr. Ford and a combination of other makes of cars for control of the automotive field.

Probably without the knowledge even of a very large share of the public, the line ups have appeared on the field and, if one may be permitted a guess, now are preparing for the greatest fight since the automotive industry was launched in America. Ford has long been a dominant figure, but he faces sturdier competition now than ever before. From the fight he will emerge with his glamor dimmed, or he will emerge, the figure of the greatest industrialist and financier the world has ever known. The next few years will tell.

Where could such a bargain be had for love or money, money especially? It is like buying the whole Almanac de Gotha. What gallery of ancestral portraits that American father-in-law could build—and all genuine.

WHEN you were little you sang, "Way out upon the prairie, how many children dwell, that never read the Bible, or hear the Sabbath bell." That made you sad.

It makes you cheerful to read that way out in the Pacific ocean many earthquakes start, arouse seismologists, but never do any harm on shore.

There was a big earthquake on the floor of the southern Pacific Friday, the old earth settling down, but no harm done. That big ocean is a great shock absorber.

LADY ASTOR says England is more democratic than America. "I can throw a challenging question at our prime minister, but imagine anyone asking a question of your president."

That isn't hard to imagine. The difficult thing is to imagine anybody getting an answer from our president, and that proves his wisdom. This is the land of gold and the administration of golden silence.

LADY ASTOR says it is a terrible thing for a woman who has made her own child's life a perfect thing to send that child out into an imperfect world.

It should comfort her to know that for her children the world won't be as hard as it would be had not the Astor ancestors bought New York real estate. It sends millions to the Astor children in England, its value increasing with every child born to the mothers of New York City. That's the thought that keeps good single taxers awake at night.

SHANGHAI is alarmed by political, military and social chaos in China. That big nation of four hundred millions, not counting young children and those too old to work, is like that ancient dinosaur, so big and long that the little brain in its head could not manage the body. It had a second brain on a much enlarged joint half way down the back bone. Russian Bolshevism seeks to supply such a second energizing brain for the Chinese dinosaur; and may succeed.

saur; and may succeed.

MEANWHILE, thank to Lord, this country decides that it isn't responsible for the recent Chinese shooting of British officers and sailors. Washington says: "It is purely a British affair."

If we were in the world court, up to our necks, or worse, in the League of Nations, the court or league could say to Washington: "You may think so, but we decide that it is also an American affair. Come across!"

YOU are reading today of a "Miss America" selected in a beauty pageant at Atlantic City.

The selection will be only moderately important, because our "Miss America" is selected by judges that pay more attention to the "figure" than to the intelligence, more attention to the hips than to the heart, more attention to the bust than to the brain.

WITH all the nations wildly cheering, Germany enters the League of Nations. Herr Stresemann, talking for the German republic, joins Briand, of the great French republic, in pledging Europe to "perpetual peace, and solemnly engaging the honor of their nations never again to draw the sword, but to settle disputes by arbitration or compromise."

promise."

EVERYBODY gave three cheers and Uncle Sam will gladly give nine cheers, or ninety, if they will stick to that good resolution, and kindly excuse him from the glorious guarantee arrangement.

Our forty-eight states won't draw the sword of fight and they really will submit everything to our supreme court.

If Europe's nations will submit their troubles to their world court, changing its name to "European court," all will be well.

MANHATTAN island with six million people packed in Greater New York, and dozens of billions packed into the wall street neighborhood, is now connected with the American continent by a vehicle tunnel under the Hudson river.

Through that tunnel motor buses will carry passengers comfortably to the subways. Railroads say, "The Interstate Commerce Commission should control these omnibuses. They may cut the income of organized carriers." Organized carriers cut the incomes of farmers by raising rates, but nobody stops that.

THE railroads haven't any perpetual mortgage on the American people, or on highways, or tunnels. They have just what the people gave them, the right to run railroads, nothing else, no right to say, "You people shall not run omnibus lines, or flying machine lines, without railroad permission."

GERMANY'S parliament discovers a new convenience, this time for the busy cabinet minister. German important officials will hear everything that goes on in the Reichstag by radio.

If our congress should broadcast proceedings free of charge, how many would listen? In Europe important questions are fought out in open parliament. Here they are arranged in committee rooms or by the "big men" far removed from politics.

And congress itself is a good deal like a Punch and Judy show, others pulling strings.

ELECTRIK MAID BAKE SHOP

Second Ave., Albany

TO THE VOTERS OF ALBANY:

I am asking the voters of our city to re-elect me the office of Mayor of Albany, and in doing so I am well aware that I am asking an endorsement of my administration of the city's affairs in so far as I have had to do with that administration, and for the part played by me in the management of the city's business during the two years now ending.

Basing my candidacy on a declaration in favor of a clean, vigorous and impartial enforcement of all the laws on the statute books of the city, I was elected, and construed my election to mean that the people approved my pre-election declarations, and wanted the law enforced, and to the best of my ability I have done what I said I would do. It has not always been pleasant; it may in some instances have worked rather harshly with some, but I did not make these laws, I found them on the statute books of the city. The people had said they wanted them enforced, I had promised to do it, and my oath of office required me to do it. Therefore, to the best of my ability I did it, fairly and impartially, without fear or favor, and measuring an equal and exact justice to all.

I am told that I have driven business from the city, because its laws were enforced. If you prefer a lax city administration, a winking at law, violation and an easy go-lucky manner of handling the violators of statutes intended to protect your homes, and families, and make this city a safe place to live in, then you should change the laws, because a law un-enforced is an invitation to violate all law, and the enforcement of only those laws that are popular, or their enforcement against only persons who are undesirable is the rankest sort of favoritism, and means not only disrespect, but a contempt for all law.

I have no apology to make for doing what I conceive to have been my duty towards the enforcement of the law, and if re-elected I shall endeavor to enforce your regularly enacted statutes so long as they remain the mandate of this city to its Mayor.

It has been said that the city is in debt, and that I can't get it out. It remains only for me to say that I did not run the city in debt. I am in no way responsible for the debts I found owing the city when I was elected. I can and do say that the city has met its obligations, has paid its running expenses, and has maintained its credit during my term of office, and if you will exercise due care in selecting your Aldermen, who are the men who will at last have to pass such enactments as will gradually bring us back to a sure and safe financial basis.

I have as far as the city has been financially able to do so, encouraged the betterment of our public schools, and the conservation, and preservation of the public health.

It is always necessary to have funds to make developments, and the only way to get these funds is by taxing either directly, or indirectly, the citizens who make up our population, and my advice that until we can get the present city debt in better shape than it now is, we should go slowly, and act cautiously in increasing that debt. I will appreciate your careful consideration of my candidacy and solicit your vote on September 20th, 1926.

Very respectfully,
F. L. CARSWELL.

LONDON FASHION GOSSIP

(By ETHEL MARSHALL)

International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON.—"Skyscraper" hats are the latest variety of feminine fashion, and as a result with twelve inches of crown and half an inch of impudent brim will be all the vogue here in a few weeks, according to the smartest milliners.

Tall military hats of medieval and modern history have contributed to the new designs, which include chimney-pots, funnel shapes and director's period of silk, the drum-major type, and the skin mode worn by the British fantry.

Tam-O-Shanters are made tall crowns, the summits being made to overhang, while among the more freakish of the mode is the modistes version of the Flatiron Building, a tall crown made three cornered with one corner rising in the front.

The crowns are stiff and square, as the milliner terms a hat that is not rounded at the top, and some of them are fastened after the style of the male "topper." They are nearly all very expensive, and range from $10 upwards.

SPORTS

Cards And Reds Tied For First As Bucs Shoved Down Trail By Giants

The St. Louis Cardinals and the Cincinnati Redlegs today stand at a dog-fall pace in first place, the Reds having defeated the Robins 4-0 while St. Louis traveled 14 frames to lose to Boston 5-4 yesterday. The Pittsburgh Pirates lost ground in the race when they dropped a game to the Giants, their old nemesis, 9-5.

A hit by Cooney in the 14th inning with two on base blasted the hopes of the Cards. Twice while the teams were knotted at 4-4, from the eighth inning on, the Cards had filled the bases with none out, Rogers Hornsby failed on both occasions to bring his teammates around the last notch. The game was bitterly contested throughout, while Theven's fielding was a feature, that gentleman handling ten chances. Douthit hit a home run in the fourth. Alexander and Sherdel pitched for the Cards while Wertz and Benton worked for the Braves.

Meantime Eppa Rixey was going strong for the Reds, stopping the Robins with four safeties in his hurling duel against Burleigh Grimes. Only two Brooklynites reached third base. The Reds gave Rixey excellent support, playing errorless ball.

The old Giant trouble bobbed up for the Pirates yesterday in a game in which four home runs were hit. Grantham of the Pirates eluded a pair for his club, while Kelley and Lindstrom did the circuit stunt for the Giants. Lindstrom hit with two men on base.

The Chicago Cubs defeated the Phillies in the other National affair 3-1.

The standing today shows the Reds and Cards knotted in first place, each having won 82 and lost 60 for a percentage of .577. The Pirates are next in line, having gathered 79 and dropped 62 for a percentage of .546, two games back of the Reds.

Penny Leonard is fighting Jack Dempsey today and will let the world know tomorrow about the truth of the champion's strength. Neither fighter is going to pull his punches and the ancient Benny is due for a lot of skipping to keep out of distance of the heavy champs swings.

Leonard declares that the champ is not over confident, but he is confident that he can defeat Tunney on the 23 of this month. The ex-Marine is proud of his chance at the champion and may hand the sporting world considerable to think about before the end of this month.

All the fighting sentiment is for Dempsey, rail birds believing that the champ is just as strong today as the leader of the heavies as the hot summer day when he dropped Jess Willard from the ranks of heavyweight leadership. That is from a fighting standpoint, hopes to win go to the Leatherneck. Tunney battled just as hard for his country back in the war days as he is fighting for his fortune today and the public looks forward with a great deal of anticipation to seeing the champion knocked from under his crown. That hope however, is not backed with substantial facts, nor is it backed with dollars and cents.

In the Southern league the Pels moved a little closer to the pennant with the administering of another defeat to the Barons. The Chicks won likewise and the standing looks like New Orleans, Memphis, Birmingham when the current is finally dropped on baseball turmoil.

The Yanks dropped a pair to Detroit yesterday while Cleveland was inching up another notch at the expense of Washington. The Yanks can continue to lose for some days yet and then come under the wire with little difficulty. The Yanks are still five and a half games in the lead and the season's close is too near to regard the Indians as contenders.

FEW REPORT FOR FIRST AFTERNOON

Gruelling Session Is Planned For Each Practice Date

With but a pair of last years men greeting Coach E. R. Alford, Albany High school opened the initial practice session of the year yesterday on the city park property grounds, opposite the new high school building. Perie, quarterback, and Thompson, tackle of last year's eleven, were the only regulars to report for the first afternoon. Martin, Moore, Dinsmore and Bush comprised the other candidates who put in an appearance on the first torrid afternoon.

Coach Alford today promised heavy practice from henceforth and even 'til Thanksgiving, planning to drive his men through the paces with all the energy and power they can muster. Four games appear on the local schedule thus far with perhaps five games yet to be signed.

Much material is yet to report two full teams to be placed into action on the grid this fall. Alford will handle the first string eleven and the backfield while Shelton will probably have charge of the second team and linesmen.

EIGHT GAMES ON DECATUR RECORD

Backfield Woory Is Bother To Coach As Game Nears

Opening October first at Florence, Decatur high school will set sail upon the rough sea of the 1926 grid schedule which includes eight games with the Thanksgiving date yet to be announced by the managerial head.

Backfield worries are considerable for the Decatur mention this year, the entire last year crew of ball toters having disappeared. West, upon whom the Decatur team counted much has gone to Morgan Prep, Namie is in Birmingham and Oldacre, captain elect for this year has not yet put in an appearance. Two full teams are reporting with six letter men returned for the line. A prospective lineup will not be announced before the first game, it was learned today.

The following aggregations appear on the Decatur schedule:

Oct. 1—Coffee high at Flor-

SYNOPSIS

At a gay party at Covent Garden
Hall, Lady George Cornish and her husband, Lord Cornish, are entertaining their only friends, a coterie of bohemians attracted by the food and entertainment provided for them.

Teddy Sherwood the only wealthy youth of the group of sycophants is a jealous rage that broods no good for Tony Fortescue, disinherited scion of a noble family who has stolen his girl at the dance.

The girl is Chrissie Dunning, actress, who came to the ball before committing suicide as she is unable to find work since the death of her father. While Chrissie and Tony are dancing the latter kisses her. It is the first kiss of a consuming love. The girl ever made an impression on the beautiful girl.

She gave him a smile, turned way in a panic of self-consciousness and sat on her legs on the sofa.
It was extraordinary, so suddenly it had been transplanted from the great floor of clashing colors, never-ending sounds and restless movements to this small oasis of silence.
A mere commonplace hole in the wall with a rolltop desk, signed photographs of the De Rozes, Melba, Caruso, and many other less famous operatic stars, a chair, a sofa, a safe, office paraphernalia, a worn strip of Turkish carpet and a stale, smelly tobacco, it seemed to her to be, at that moment of shattered plans, a wharf at the mouth of a swift river to which she had attached her frail craft by a miracle.

"I don't drink," she said with a few seconds ago when he had held in his arms a fainting girl whose lowerlike face had gone as white as her diminutive skirt, he had led his work cut out to keep up with the work and abundance of energy of his partner, the tip of whose tiny, little nose didn't come up to his shoulder. And now he stood looking down at a shy child with a trusting smile in her wide blue eyes and a spot of colour on each cheek that might have been left there by the touch of wet rose leaves. The look that he had called fey had gone.
"I can't make you out," he said.
"Just as I am going to dash forth and S.O.S. for a doctor, you've come back to life and look as if you could go on dancing for a week. Is that true, or do I dream it?"

There was a short silence, during which she went in spirit to her lodgings in Westminster Bridge Road and looked at the sinister bottle that was hidden under some of her clothes in a drawer.

"I dunno," she said. "But I think so." And before she could stop herself she added, "It all depends on you."

"On me? How?" There was something wildly paradoxical in the telephone operator's accent on the lips of this exquisite little Fragonard. It had amused him when he had heard it times without number from the stalls and thought that it was assumed for the sake of local color. It fascinated him now. It was so absurd. Surprising, too, like nearing a Highlander talk French or a Parsee speak with the manner of a Balliol bloater. He liked being surprised and he was. "I am," he said, and he saw her cheeks glow.
He asked himself if she were as old as the Sphinx or as young as a butterfly.

She covered her naivete by rapping out the sort of quick back answer which she had cultivated with such care in her business. "Well, I suppose you can nip out and pinch a syphon of soda water and a couple of chicken sandwiches? Those and this quiet'll do the trick."

"Of course I can," he said. "From Lady George," and made for the door.

"No, don't. I don't want 'em. I'm as right as rain, really. Please."

And she stretched out her hand, small, delicate and capable, and put into her eyes a look which hauled him up as securely as a well-lung lasso. It had come to her as an inspiration that the deserted Teddy Sherwood was waiting for them in Lady George's box, and already having seen him in the agony of jealousy, all that was protective in her nature exerted itself to prevent his meeting Tony.

As a matter of fact Teddy Sherwood was not in the box at that moment. Having been unable to catch sight of the puff of ballet skirt among the dancers, he was hunting rapidly along the passages with a lust for blood. Once already he had passed the door of the room into which these two were destined to discover each other and the truth of things.

So Tony turned and went back, wondering why he didn't take her in his arms once more and kiss her again, as he would have done but for that odd touch of primness which had made her regret the shortness of her skirt. He had quick eyes. And as he stood there in his decadent fancy dress, his sleek hair as undisturbed as though he had just left the hands of the barber to whom, as to everybody else, he owed money, the characteristic impudence was missing from his expression. Never in the slightest degree self-conscious, a distressing indication that made men say he was now perfectly straightforward in his complete interest in this queer little girl with the yellow hair, blue eyes, and titbits, he seemed to have stopped growing in her early teens and to contradict sophistication by an out-of-date modesty. He found that the irresistible desire to touch that had made him take her away from his friend, though stronger than ever, was held in most unusual check by curiosity, sympathy, and respect. He was ready to bet all the money he owned that there was a great pain behind that smile and that well-trained assumption of gaiety. He was going to exert himself to find out what it was, and if it were in his power to help, to do so out of gratitude not only for the enjoyment that she and her sister had given him in the theatre but because he was dominated by a superstitious feeling that he and she had been brought together for a reason impossible to define.
As a man who backed his luck he was a prey to superstition, and followed impulses as sounder men acted on calm judgment.

"As a rule there's a bottle of whiskey here," he said, and opened the bottom drawer of the desk. "Yes, though badly lit."

"Not for me," said Chrissie.

"Not? Not just a mouthful to warm the cockles? Always useful." He held the bottle with a certain affection.

"I don't drink," she said, with the fearlessness of ridicule which had made it easy for her to keep on the steep path.

"Very wise, very exemplary. I'm all against." He assumed an air of profound righteousness. "But, I hate to see waste," and the remaining two fingers went down extremely well. "Do you smoke by any chance?"

"No, me," she said dryly.

He fished out a packet of Three Castles that was rather worn and crumpled. "I'm always losing my case," he said, without the slightest suspicion of a smile. "So I've taken to leaving it in the tender care of my old friend Atto."

Attenborough had been a friend of hers too, since she had received the verdict of the managers. All her trickets had passed over his counter into the mysterious recesses that contained so many fruits of misfortune.

He straightened out a cigarette and gave her a light. She inhaled like a Greek, he saw, and felt that they stood on ground that was a little less uneven.

And as he lit one for himself, she ran her eyes over his tall, wiry, graceful figure, small, well-shaped head and a profile such as she had seen in the pictures by the old masters in the National Gallery. The story of his having been sent down from Oxford, and of his father's bankruptcy, passed through the Bankruptcy Court, run into Low Street, and of his reckless adventures in quest of a living without work were true enough, she knew.
The latest about Tony Fortescue was always a part of London conversation. But she told herself in extenuation of his misdeeds, as all good women do, that he had been misunderstood and without the love that makes sacrifices and the inspiration to go straight. Give her the chance! She could put him back into a coat of mail, she could.

He pitched away his cigarette, drew up a chair, sat down with his knees against the sofa, bent forward and took her hands.

"Although you don't happen to know it, Chrissie, I'm one of your oldest London friends," he said.

"What makes you think so?" she asked, wrinkling her nose.

"I was at the Coliseum the night that you and Sisie were put on as an extra turn, and yelling for en-cores gave me a sore throat for a week." He laughed at the recollection of his unwonted enthusiasm.

The unexpected mention of her sister's name flooded her eyes and sent a tremble all along her lips.

"Oh, my God," he said, as back into his mind came the accounts of the twin's sudden death and the description of the Manchester funeral.
He had forgotten this tragic incident when he had so ruthlessly taken Chrissie from his friend. He had forgotten, also, the gossip among music-hall artists at whom he knew many, of her being down and out, not bookable alone. A remarkable memory is demanded of people who are under the despotism of newspapers with their twice daily service of the world's sufferings.

"Now I begin to understand—my poor kid. I'm awfully sorry." He put his cheek against her cheek in an impulse of sympathy.

There had been no one, except a kind landlady in her Manchester lodgings, to mother her in her grief. This human touch was good! And presently, still sitting in this way, she drew a long breath and said, "A bit of luck meeting you."

Gossip of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population

SAN FRANCISCO.—More people in San Francisco commit suicide in the hopeful springtime than in the depressing winter months, according to Coroner T. B. Leland of this city who has just filed his annual report.

The report indicates that in the spring months when everybody should feel glad to be alive many people become despondent and turn to death.

More suicides are committed in May than in December. And, likewise, according to Dr. Leland's report, June has a greater quota of suicides than January.

And, incidentally, the report bears out the curious fact that far more men than women give up the ghost and take their lives to end it all.

Dr. Leland's figures show the 135 men and 40 women committed suicide in San Francisco during the fiscal year ending last June 30.

Of these suicides 45 occurred during the winter months of December, January and February, and 57 during the spring months of April, May and June.

The greatest number, according to Dr. Leland, took their lives on account of ill health—46. In 28 cases the reason could not be discovered. Five killed themselves after having committed murder.

Eleven were mentally deranged and 12 suffered from melancholia. Sixteen were temporarily insane.

Forty Men Scramble For Berths On Barna Squad As Opening Day Is Near

Pepper Is Going Great at a Flank and Is Likely To Land His Place As a Regular, Holmes Now at Center.

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Sept. 14.—The Alabama squad complete with the arrival here last Saturday of Sherlock Holmes, veteran center of last year, the Crimson started their second week of practice here Monday morning and the same afternoon with almost forty men on the field. As was the case last week, the men were shoved hard in the various fundamentals of the game and also put through a bit of scrimmage early.

Alabama's opening game is less than two weeks off, Millsaps being scheduled to furnish the competition to the Dixie champs here at Denny Field on Friday, September 24. This game, originally scheduled for the next day, is to be played Friday afternoon in order to give the people of Tuscaloosa a better chance of seeing the self-destruction, was attributed as the cause of but one suicide during the year.

Unrequited love, generally believed to be the greatest provocative of them all, took a toll of only two suicides during the same period. Whether these two were men or women, or one of each, was not stated.

Suicides, Dr. Leland's statistics show, were the greatest cause of violent deaths in San Francisco during the year under survey.

Total number of deaths investigated by the Coroner's office in this city during the year was 1936. Suicides, as had already been stated, numbered 175.

Next came deaths due to motor vehicle accidents—102.

There were 34 murders in San Francisco during the fiscal year 1925-26, Dr. Leland reported.

"Twenty years of observation in this office," Coroner Leland said, leads to the opinion that much of human suffering could be prevented through the application of modern methods, properly and intelligently directed."

stone until Coach Wade played him in the Washington game at Pasadena, is going great on a flank. So is "Big" Pepper, a baseball star, and a reserve back of last year. Other end candidates showing well are Sanford, and Winslett, the former an ex-freshman.

It looks as if the Crimson will really have a better pair of ends this season than they have had in years. The Crimson have several men under consideration for the two flanks, and no decision is to be made for several days yet. Constant practice and curbing of faults in the men's play are giving the candidates a more finished form in action, and if two capable ends come through, the Crimson will have a line that will be good although it may not be as powerful as it was last year.

Alabama's freshmen started to work here Monday afternoon under Coaches Propst and Brown. About forty of them reported, all sizes, height, weight and speed and it will be several days yet before the Baby Crimson mentors will know anything about their squad.

Law Building Plan Expected

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Plans for the law building of the University of Alabama are expected within the next few days from the University's consulting architect in Birmingham, according to Dean A. J. Farrah, of the University law school. The Dean stated that they did not expect to begin work on the structure until they had $25,000 in hand. At present the treasury has only $16,000, he said. The contract for the new building will probably be let around November 1.

Young Italian Granted Parole

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Governor W. W. Brandon has granted a parole to Liverani Ettore, an Italian seaman. The young seaman was sent up from Mobile county for 22 years for killing the captain of the "Valescura" the vessel in which he worked. He is said to be a young man of excellent breeding, belonging to a good Italian family, and has an aged mother in Italy, where he will soon return. Thomas P. King, Mobile real estate man, interested himself in the case and was instrumental in securing the parole for the young Italian.
